Crock Pot Beef Stew

For the richest, thickest stew, I like to cook on low for a longer amount of time. To get the stew started, I cook on high for 3 to 4 hours, then set to low and let it cook for about 6 hours, a total of 10 hours. When you take your time and let it cook slowly in the crock pot, I find there's no need for thickeners like flour or corn starch. The longer slow way, the stew comes naturally thickens, the meat is very tender and the broth reduces somewhat intensifying the flavor.

It's been raining this week, the perfect weather for cozy food like a hearty beef stew. Enjoy!
