

Pecan Brown Sugar and Kahula Baked Brie

Description

I LOVE brie cheese. Well, I actually love all cheeses... but that's another story. However, there is nothing quite like a good baked brie! I usually make mine topped with jam and wrapped in croissant... it's a sure-fire winner. So why was I surprised that this baby was a hit as well? Who knows! One thing I've learned is that people love a good baked brie! It's the #1 request I get when people come over or I'm invited to a party... hah If only they knew how EASY they were to throw together! And this one? Even easier... no croissant, no wrapping - quick, easy, and it will blow your mind!

Pecan Brown Sugar and Kahlua Baked Brie

Take a spoon and scrape the white rind off the center circle of the brie (to the inside of the 1/4" rim).

Place brie on the center of an oven safe platter.

Mix the pecans, brown sugar, and Kahlua in a small bowl.

Carefully place the mixture in then center of the brie and spread to the edges (staying within the 1/4" rim you left).

Bake for 8-15 minutes until brown sugar/pecan mixture begins to bubble.

Be careful not to overcook (the brie will literally melt and loose its shape if baked too long).

You want it nice a warm.

Serve with crackers and apple slices.
